

Seed Plants Take Over

For millions of years, seed plants thrived outside of the swampy lowlands where spore-producing plants were common. As climate changed and lowlands dried, seed plants expanded everywhere.